ABOUT AAOSH

The American Academy for Oral Systemic Health is a national network of healthcare professionals and advocates dedicated to interdisciplinary collaboration, ongoing research and education of the oral-systemic connection. Our members include physicians, dentists, nurses, chiropractors, dental hygienists, and other health professionals, researchers and educators.

We are committed to significantly improving the health of patients and communities by building public and professional awareness about the clear link between oral health and total body health, and focusing on coordinated care between dentists and physicians.

ONGOING PROFESSIONAL EDUCATION

AAOSH offers members free monthly webinars as well as conferences and other professional education opportunities (with the opportunity to earn up to 32 CE credit hours each year). The organization is known widely within the healthcare industry for its Scientific Session. This annual event is the most comprehensive conference on oral-systemic health.

By taking advantage of the webinars and events, members learn the latest oral-systemic science and implementation methods, and build resources and referral partners with other health professionals.

AAOSH NETWORK

“Oral health and systems medicine are intimately related but have remained, sadly, as isolated knowledge communities for decades.”
